PORTLAND ON WALLAMET

[From the Overland Monthly]

The apparent tendency of modern civilization is to repress and prevent the growth of individual extremes and produce only the mere average man. The city is the great promoter and centre of this civilization as the castle and its surrounding walls was of that of the feudal ages. In the fourteenth century the town worked to draw the many, and the burghers counted it an honor and a security to enjoy the favor and protection of the lord of the soil.

Now all this is reversed. The country is subordinate to the town. The latter is the ever widening arena in which our material and sensuous people seek and find the best market for their abilities and the readiest gratification of their tastes and ambition.

But the rage for civic life as yet only exists in a modified form in some parts of the Republic. There are still some favored portions of this very progressive country where the plow and the reaping hook maintain their ancient ascendancy in the popular use and estimation.

Among the fir clad hills and broad rich valleys of Oregon the bucolic instinct still lingers. Of the 100,000 people who constitute the permanent population of Oregon, fully four fifths of them dwell not in town or village, but upon farms. Yet the commercial metropolis of Oregon—Portland on Wallamet—is the second town in importance on the Pacific coast. Next to San Francisco the capital and commerce of the Pacific slope will centre in this solid and reliable Oregon town.

Geographically speaking, Portland is situated in north latitude, forty five degrees thirty minutes, and west longitude one hundred and twenty two degrees, twenty seven minutes and thirty seconds on the west bank of the Wallamet river and near the northern end of the great valley of the same name. From the sea the town is approached by the Columbia river. This magnificent stream drains a greater and more varied extent of country than any water course upon the continent. Vessels drawing sixteen feet of water can go in and out the Columbia in ordinary weather and tide with safety and when these are favorable they may sink four feet deeper without danger. After crossing the bar you sail or steam up this broad stream pass Irving's classic Astoria in nearly a due east direction about fifty miles, then turning shortly but not sharply to the south, you hold the latter course for about forty miles. These ninety miles are counted "as the crows flies," on an air line but by the thread of the river the distance is reckoned one hundred and eight miles. At this point the Columbia bends (speaking or rather looking up stream) a little north of west, making quite an elbow. On the outer and west side of this elbow enters the Wallamet river, flowing generally from the south. Up this deep quiet stream you glide twelve miles, when you step ashore at Portland, and make yourself at home at any one of a dozen hotels that promise at least all they perform. There is also a daily line of stages and steamboats leaving Portland for the south—the former going up the Wallamet river from sixty to one hundred and fifty miles, owing to the season of the year and the latter running to the Sacramento valley, and thence connecting by railway and steamboats with San Francisco. In the months of May, June and July, the healthy traveller may enjoy a delightful ride upon these stages—clearing the ground at the rate of one hundred miles in twenty four hours.

At this time work is going on upon two lines of railway extending from Portland up the Wallamet valley, one on either side of the Wallamet river. How many struggles and failures these experimental enterprises are doomed to undergo before they are accomplished, no one can predict, but as the world now goes, their accomplishment is only a question of time. From the conformation of the country these roads must merge into one at about one hundred and twenty miles south of Portland. Then whether they will deflect to the left and go through the Cascade mountains to the east of Eugene, and on in the direction of Goose lake and the Humboldt to the Central Pacific, or continue due south to the southern border of Oregon, through the Umpqua and Rogue river valleys, with a view of meeting a railway from Sacramento is a question now under discussion, somewhat prematurely. A railway up the valley of the Columbia to connect Portland with the Central Pacific at Salt Lake, is also a favorite project with many Portlanders, and one that persons now living are likely to see realized.

From this hasty glance at the lines of travel—actual and possible—that terminate in Portland, it is apparent that its facilities for commerce and communication with the world must always give it great importance in the business affairs of the Coast.

In 1843—three years before the treaty with Great Britain, by which the latter withdrew all claim to Oregon Territory south of the forty ninth parallel, and before the American people by the election of President Polk declared for the whole of Oregon—"Fifty four forty or fight"—the site of Portland was, in the language of the country, "taken up" by a settler named Overton. Nothing much is remembered of Overton. It is understood that he was from Tennessee. He left the country soon after and among the early settlers there is a tradition that he was hung in Texas, whether justly or not is not known. Probably on this account Portlanders do not generally trace their genealogy farther back than to Messrs Lovejoy and Pettygrove who succeeded Overton in the possession of the land in the fall of 1843 or spring of 1844. At this time the site was covered with a dense forest of fir timber. In 1844, a log dwelling was erected by the proprietors, near the corner of Washington and Front streets. In the summer of 1845 a portion of the land was surveyed into blocks and lots. A block contained eight lots of fifty feet front and one hundred feet in depth. In the following winter Pettygrove erected the first store house—long called the old "shingle store," because its walls were covered with shingles on the outside instead of sawn boards. The lot on which the building stood is now the southwest corner of Washington and Front streets. It could not have been bought at that time for less than $100; to day it will command two hundred times that sum or $400 a front foot. The lot is now covered by a three story brick building the corner room of which (twenty five by seventy feet) rents for $250 a month in gold. During this summer (1845) the embryo city was christened Portland. At the same time it narrowly escaped being overburdened with the ambitious name of Boston.

It happened in this way. Mr Lovejoy being a native of Massachusetts of course desired to call the place after the capital of his State. On the other hand Mr Pettygrove being a Maine man preferred Portland. The dispute was finally settled by an appeal to the simple modern substitute for the ancient wager of battle, a game of heads and tails. Mr P. tossed a copper cent, which he carried as a souvenir of other days, and as good fortune would have it Portland won.

In 1846, some lots were disposed of to settlers, and a wharf and slaughter house constructed on the bank of the river.

From this time forth the new town was an existing fact though it was not until the year 1851 that Oregon's ancient capital—Oregon City—situate at the great falls of the Wallamet gave in and acknowledged that the commercial sceptre had departed from her people. In the mean time Portland was described as "a place twelve miles below Oregon City."

In October 1848 the proprietorship of the town changed hands. Mr Pettygrove who had bought out Gen Lovejoy selling to Daniel H Lownsdale. The price paid was $5 000 in Oregon leather, tanned by Lownsdale in a yard belonging to him and adjoining the town site. In 1849 Stephen Coffin and W W Chapman became interested as proprietors of the town with Lownsdale. At this time there were not to exceed one hundred people settled in the town. The discovery of gold in California in 1848 had the effect to turn the attention of the Oregonians to the mines and for two or three years all progress and improvement in Oregon, in both country and town was seriously checked. During this year (1849) a portion of the citizens organized an association and elected trustees for the purpose of building the Portland school and meeting house, being the first enterprise of the kind on the Pacific coast. The house was built at a cost of $2,000 on First street, and was used as a school house and place of holding secular and religious meetings and sometimes courts for many years. In the course of time the association ceased to exist, and the possession of the school house lot became an element in municipal politics and a subject of prolonged legal controversy one incidental effect of which was to preserve in some measure the facts connected with the settlement of the town and its early school and meeting house.

In 1850 shipping began to arrive freely from California and the Sandwich Islands. Couch & Co despatched the brig Emma Preston to China. Couch's addition to Portland, sometimes called North Portland was laid out on the land claim of Capt John H Couch. December 4 of that year the first paper was published in the town the WEEKLY OREGONIAN. Thomas J Dryer (afterwards Commissioner to Sandwich Islands) editor and publisher. At this time there were two other newspapers published in the Territory—the Spectator at Oregon City and the Western Star at Milwaukie, a then promising young city on the east bank of the Wallamet and six miles south of Portland.

The Western Star soon after disappeared from the Milwaukie horizon, to reappear in Portland as the Times. The town itself proved to be too near Portland, to become a city. It has however been noted for the manufacture of flour, the building of steamboats and the Meek & Luelling nursery from which this coast received its first supply of cultivated apple trees. The first steamboat of any size or quality built in Oregon—the once famous Lot Whitcomb—was launched at Milwaukie on Christmas, 1850.

In January, 1851, Portland was first incorporated. The territorial extent of the young city was limited to two miles along the river by one mile back, making two square miles. In April following, the officers of the city government were chosen—Hugh D O'Bryant being chosen Mayor over Joseph S Smith, the present Democratic candidate for Congress in Oregon. In June the city gave 222 votes for delegate to Congress from which fact it may be safely inferred that the total population did not then equal one thousand. In March of this year, regular steam communication with San Francisco was first established. The good ship Columbia arrived at Portland in that month and commenced to make monthly trips to San Francisco, carrying U S mails. She was withdrawn from the route about 1860, and afterwards destroyed by fire in the China seas. Her Oregon career was an uninterrupted success.

In 1853 the first brick building was erected in Portland, by Wm S Ladd, now the managing partner of the banking house of Ladd & Tilton.

In 1855 the local census showed that there were in the town four churches, one academy, one public school, one steam flour mill, four steam saw mills, four printing offices, and about forty stores engaged in the sale of dry goods, groceries, etc. The real and personal property in the town was valued that year for taxation at $1 105,034, probably about one half of its cash value.

In 1857 the valuation of property was a fraction less than in 1855, and the population was enumerated at 1 280—seven hundred and sixty five males and five hundred and fifteen females. In 1860 the population had increased to 2,917, of these seven hundred and sixteen were between the ages of four and twenty, and entitled to attend the public schools. The following table shows the population on December 31st, of each year given:

1862	[illegible]
1863	[illegible]
1864	[illegible]
1865	[illegible]
1866	[illegible]
1867	[illegible]

In 1866 the property in the city liable to taxation was valued at $4,200,000, and in 1867 at $4,100,000. The apparent decrease in valuation is more than accounted for by the passage of a law between the two assessments which allowed the debts of the property holder to be deducted from the value of his property. In 1866 there was collected by the city $70,000 taxes from property and about $14,000 from licenses and fines; of this amount $10,000 was expended upon the improvement of the Wallamette river. During the same period $75,000 was expended upon street improvements, but this sum was levied exclusively upon the real property immediately adjoining the improvements. The city tax now being collected for this year amounts in the aggregate to $33,101, for general purposes $19,205, for river improvement $3,203, for interest on railway bonds $10,678, or seven and three quarters mills on the dollar of the assessed property. Generally a large amount of taxable property is omitted from the assessment roll, while the rest is not assessed at more than half its value. The cash value of Portland is not far from $10,000,000.

The following statement of the exports of Portland for the year 1866 is taken from the manifests of the vessels going out of the Columbia—mostly to San Francisco. These values are estimated, but may be relied upon as near the wholesale prices of that year:

Apples, 68 860 boxes, at $1 per box	$68,880
dried 2,603 pkgs., at $10 per pkg	26,030
Bacon, 4 376 gunnies, at $16 per gun	70,016
Eggs 1 763 pkgs at $10 per pkg	17,630
Flour 20 813 barrels at $6 per bbl	149,066
Hides, 4,674 at $1 50 per hide	7,011
Onions, 1 325 sacks at $4 per sack	5,300
Pork 72 barrels, at $20 per bbl	1,440
Pitch 292 barrels, at $6 per barrel	1,752
Salmon 2,564 pkgs at $8 50 per pkg	21,794
Staves and headings, 50 204, gross value	15,000
Shooks 14 972, at 40 cents per shook	5,989
Varnish 124 pkgs at $10 per pkg	1,240
Wool 1 671 bales, at $40 per bale	66,840
	$457,967

In addition, it is estimated that during this year there was exported from Portland Oregon products to the value of $200 000. Neither does this table include any of the exports up the Columbia river by steamboat, to the mining regions. As to the export of wool, it is proper to remark that the export from Portland only includes a portion of the Oregon clip for 1866. The export by the way of the Umpqua river, was at least 100 000 pounds more, and there was also manufactured in the State during the same period 1,000,000 pounds.

The seaward bound exports from Portland for the year 1867 were five times the value of those of 1866. As appears from the manifests of vessels the total value of merchandise and produce exported from Portland in 1867 was $2,462 793.

Some fifty different articles enter into the list of exports for 1867. The following table exhibits the quantity and value of the leading articles:

Apples, 33,996 boxes at $1 per box	$33,996
dried, 4 958 pkgs at $12 per pkg	59,496
Bacon [illegible] gunnies $11 per gunny	[illegible]
Butter, 1 492 pkgs, at $24 per pkg	35,808
Bran 1,116 sacks at 60 cts per sack	[illegible]
Beef 1,0[illegible] bbls at $15 per bbl.	15,[illegible]

The Democratic form is already so badly squabbled and off its feet that the strongest chase in the country can't hold it together and there are clear indications that it will be in h—l the receptacle for broken forms, very early in November."

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO JULY 9

Congressional

WASHINGTON, July 7.—In the House Stevens as a matter of privilege presented a resolution proposing the appointment of a committee to report articles of impeachment. The first article charges the President with the abuse of Government patronage; the second with the usurpation of power in establishing provisional governments; the third with attempting to bribe the Colorado Senators with pardoning deserters; with appointing persons to office who could not take the test oath; with restoring forfeited property and with selling and allowing to be sold pardons. Stevens also submitted a long printed speech in support of his resolution which he asked to have printed in the Globe. Finally, on Stevens' motion the matter was postponed to Monday two weeks.

Williams of Pennsylvania, said he desired as a matter of privilege to submit additional articles of impeachment, which he had prepared some time ago, and he should desire to support them by argument, but would not occupy the time of the House now if allowed to print them in the Globe, which proposition was allowed.

The New York Convention

NEW YORK, July 8.—The Convention met at 10 A. M. The Hall was filled in every part. No prayer was offered.

The following was announced as the National Executive Committee: Alabama, John Forsyth; Arkansas, John M Herrick; California, John Bigler; Connecticut, M Converse; Delaware, Saml Townsend; Florida, Charles E Dyck; Georgia, A H Colquitt; Illinois, Wilbur F Storey; Indiana, Wm Beck; Iowa, Daniel D First; Kansas, J Eaton; Kentucky, Thomas C McCreery; Louisiana, Joseph McConnelly; Maine, Sylvanus R Lyman; Maryland, Odin Bowie; Massachusetts, Frederick O Prince; Michigan, William A A Moore; Minnesota, C W Nash; Mississippi, C E Hooker; Missouri, Charles A Stewart; Nevada, J W McCorkle; New Hampshire, Henry Bingham; New Jersey, John M Gregor; New York, August Belmont; North Carolina, Thomas Bragg; Ohio, John G Thompson; Oregon, J C Hawthorne; Pennsylvania, Isaac E Heister; Rhode Island, Gideon Bradford; South Carolina, Charles H Simonton; Tennessee, John W Sedgwick; Texas, John Hancock; Vermont, Henry B Smith; Virginia, John Goode; West Virginia, John Hall; Wisconsin, Fred W Horne.

Fish of Indiana made a short speech and nominated Hendricks. He said the delegation had voted a reasonable time for Pendleton and thought they should still adhere to the gentleman from Ohio and a minority of the delegates expressed the highest respect for Hendricks, but he said the State Convention had instructed the delegates to vote for Pendleton.

The roll was then called on the seventh ballot. Missouri and a portion of Tennessee voted for Pendleton whose name was vociferously cheered. A recess of 15 minutes was then taken.

On the eighth ballot Louisiana went over to Pendleton. At the conclusion of the call New York withdrew the name of Church and cast a solid vote for Hendricks. This was received with frantic cheering mingled with hisses.

The remaining ballots showed little change till the twelfth, when California cast half a vote for Chase. There was long, continued applause in the galleries. A scene of confusion ensued. A motion was made to clear the galleries, but not acted on. Tennessee gave one vote for McClellan and the galleries applauded, though not so long as for Chase. Pennsylvania still kept voting solid for Asa Packer. A recess of 15 minutes was had.

On the ninth ballot North Carolina voted solid for Hancock instead of Pendleton. Virginia went for Hancock, dropping Pendleton. California voted variously on different ballots, generally giving Pendleton 3. Oregon gave a solid vote for Pendleton.

On the fifteenth ballot Pennsylvania went solid for Hancock amid great cheers. This ballot stood Pendleton 129½, Hancock 79½, Hendricks 82½. Packer, Johnson and Doolittle, each received the same vote as before.

On the sixteenth ballot Arkansas changed from Pendleton to Hancock. Georgia gave 6½ for Hancock. Louisiana and Mississippi left Pendleton and voted solid for Hancock. The result was Hancock 113½, Pendleton 107½, Hendricks 70½. Several delegations retired for consultation.

On the 17th ballot Alabama changed from Pendleton to Hancock.

CHICAGO, July 8, 4 o'clock P. M.—On the thirteenth ballot, Pennsylvania went for Hancock. The ballot then stood Pendleton 129½, Hendricks, 82½, Hancock, 79½.

On the eighteenth ballot Pendleton, 56½, Hancock, 144½, Hendricks, 87, Hoffman, Mayor of New York, 3.

A row broke out in the Illinois delegation. Their chairman cast the vote solid for Hendricks. A delegate protested. Pending this row, the convention adjourned till to morrow.

Seymour Nominated.

NEW YORK, July 9.—On the 22d ballot, Horatio Seymour, of New York, was nominated for President.

Delegate to the Democratic Convention Killed

NEW YORK, July 7.—While Peter Cagger and John E Devlin were riding in Central Park last night their horses ran off and threw both gentlemen out of the vehicle. Cagger was found about midnight dead—his neck broken. Devlin is still unconscious and lies in a critical condition.

Soldiers' and Sailors' Convention

NEW YORK, July 7.—The Soldiers and Sailors' Convention met at noon. General Franklin was not present, owing to indisposition. General Denver of California took the chair.

Slocum reported a resolution from the committee on platform, reciting that a nominal interchange had been had with the Democratic Convention which had fully confirmed our former estimate of the purity and patriotism of that body, and fully justifies the belief that in the selection of candidates and construction of the platform the Convention will be governed by the spirit of the address adopted by this body. Therefore,

Resolved, That we will support their nominees and on our return home will induce our late comrades in arms to do likewise.

Col Campbell of Ohio, moved to lay the report of the Committee on the table. He was unwilling to indorse the Democratic platform or candidates without knowing what they were.

A scene of great confusion ensued and the vote was finally taken by States, when Campbell's motion was lost, and the report of the Committee adopted, only seven votes being in the negative.

General Ewing introduced a resolution favoring the preservation of the integrity of the national securities, declaring the withdrawal of national bank currency and the substitution of greenbacks was a policy favoring the few as against the many and tending to produce repudiation. Gen Ewing supported his resolution in a lengthy speech.

A delegate from California raised a point of order that the resolution should go to the Committee without debate. A motion to suspend the rules and allow the resolution to be passed was lost, 8 to 197, and the resolution went to the Committee.

The platform of the Democratic Convention was then read and received with applause and a resolution accepting the platform unanimously passed.

General Buckner, late of the Confederate army, was called for and greeted with cheers. He said he was tired leading men to be buried, as the brave soldiers on both sides had been buried and both sections of the country united in unity and peace.

A resolution affirming the continuance of the confidence and love entertained by the Convention for General McClellan was offered by General Slocum and received with tremendous cheering and unanimously adopted. A committee was appointed to convey this resolution to McClellan.

A resolution of thanks to President Johnson for removing Stanton passed under a suspension of the rules.

A resolution of thanks to the officers of the Convention was passed and thereupon they adjourned sine die.

NATIONAL UNION NOMINATIONS.

For President:

U. S. GRANT,

For Presidential Electors:

O JACOBS, of Jackson
WILSON BOWLBY of Washington
A B MEACHAM, of Umatilla

Horatio Seymour

This man an ultra Copperhead who was repudiated by the great State of New York for infidelity to the country in the agony of the war is the candidate of the reactionists and rebels for President of the United States He was known during the struggle as one of the numerous class who were in favor of the war but opposed to its prosecution His principles are precisely those of Pendleton and Vallandigham but he has more shrewdness and plausibility than those Democratic champions. Like them, he denied the constitutionality of coercion, and like them he threw every possible obstacle in the way of prosecuting the war We know it is claimed by the regenerated Democracy that when Governor of New York in 1863 he hurried forward troops to repel Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania, but there was an obvious reason for this act of pretended patriotism So long as the field of war was the region south of the Potomac Seymour opposed every measure for the subjugation of the rebels, but when the conflict was transferred to the State of Pennsylvania and Lee's army threatened Philadelphia, New York City and the mansions of Gov Seymour, he was compelled to act for the defense of his State This one instance of enforced patriotism is the only one which can be named in Seymour's history So soon as Lee's army had been driven back he immediately began again to oppose and hinder the efforts of the National Government to put down the rebellion He tried to stop the draft, and the riots of 1863 and the murder of enrolling officers were the direct results of his policy. The mob relied on him to stand between them and their country, and he gave the most satisfactory assurances to his bloody-handed "friends" On the Fourth of July, 1863, while Grant and Meade were delivering the country by defeating, dispersing and capturing the armies of the rebels, Horatio Seymour was desecrating the day by an inflammatory speech against the Government for prosecuting the war to the injury of the Southern people. The burden of his oration was a malignant attack upon those who were charged with upholding national authority, for urging on the war to the discomfort and oppression of the chivalrous Democracy of the South who were in arms for the destruction of the Union Alluding to the draft, he told the treasonable Copperheads present that the National Executive should be resisted in case his "usurpations" and "outrages" were persisted in. A few days afterwards the riot broke out as a direct result of Seymour's incitations, and after it had raged for three or four days this model Governor came down to the city, went into the midst of the riotous mob, called them his "friends" and, "fellow-citizens," told them he was there "to show them a test of his friendship," and assured them that he had sent to Washington "to have this draft suspended and stopped" The substance and meaning of his speech was that "it would be right to riot, and burn buildings, and hunt negroes, and slaughter officers, if the draft were to go on, but he would have it stopped and given up So go home and keep the peace." There is not a man in the Democratic party, not excepting Vallandigham or any one else, whose record has been so infamous and vicious as that of Horatio Seymour. He was nominated for the purpose of making the electoral vote of New York sure for the Democratic party by the suffrages of his murdering "friends," the forty thousand "plug-uglies" of New York City.

Their Chief Reliance.

A large part of the Democratic platform is devoted to insidious appeals to a sordid, selfish and ignorant class against the public debt The leaders of the party are playing upon and pandering to the very same passions which produced the crimes of the great and bloody revolution in France. The attempt is made in this platform to lead "the poor," so called by demagogues, into a belief that they are sorely oppressed by the national debt and ought to shake off this burden This is the meaning, in brief, of several resolutions in the declaration of "principles" put forth by the New York Convention And every man who wants to repudiate the debt will vote "Democratic" in the full belief that he is voting to bring about that direct result The Republicans desire to pay the debt honestly and will pay it if they continue to control the country. Ever since the close of the war they have been paying it at the rate of one hundred million dollars a year, and would have reduced it even more rapidly had they had the co-operation of the Executive. The Democrats—that is to say, the masses of the party—do not want to pay it at all. It is an old "Democratic" principle that the debt was unconstitutionally created, and that party can therefore at any time find a logical reason for repudiation. Paying in greenbacks, or in "promises to pay" is simply a transfer of the debt into another shape with loss to the present holders and without changing the amount of the debt It would still be necessary to pay it sometime in gold, or repudiate it entirely

The proposition to pay the debt at this time as the New York Times observes, "is not called for by the terms of the bonds, by the condition of the currency, or by any present or prospective exigency of the Government. The advocates of unlimited inflation may find in it an excuse for the measure at which they aim but as a question between the country and the bondholders it has no practical application whatever There is no necessity for mooting it in any shape The bonds are not due Their holders are content to await their maturity And there is a reasonable certainty that long before that period arrives, the dispute about gold and greenbacks will have been ended by the resumption of specie payments What object is to be gained then, by such a resolution? Not the improvement of the public credit for the mere suggestion of payment in greenbacks is injurious Not the convenience of the national creditor, for he has made no application on the subject Not the benefit of the American people for the policy that would begin by anticipating a payment only to repudiate part of it and end by flooding the country with depreciated and inconvertible paper would be equivalent to universal bankruptcy Such a project can be only mischievous in its inception and in its tendency"

The Overland Monthly

Until recently no attempt had been made to establish on the Pacific coast a literary magazine which should take rank with publications of the first class on the Atlantic side Such an attempt has been made by A Roman & Company of San Francisco, and we have as a result the first number of the Overland Monthly As a work of art, typographically, and in general exterior appearance, the new magazine resembles the Atlantic, but it has an individualism, a distinctive character of its own Every work of this kind should have its own idea If it does not wholly conform to its own idea it should always work towards it. In an attempt of this sort we look for something besides servile imitation Any effort by a new literary enterprise to copy the spirit or build on the idea of a successful publication elsewhere will be a failure In the conception of the Overland Monthly these facts were understood and as a result of this spirit of independence and self reliance a magazine is given us, fresh and original in its contents and possessing a high order of literary ability It is not local in its nature, but is in the widest sense a Pacific coast magazine and the lovers of literature will welcome it as an exponent of the higher and maturer thought perhaps as an index of the intellectual growth, of "the West, —using this term not in the meaning it bears in the longitude of New England and New York, but in its real signification It will doubtless be the aim of the publishers to sustain in future issues the excellence of the initial number We reprint from this number an article entitled Portland on Wallamet" This is a paper of much value, and its publication in the magazine prior to any other article of a similar kind does honor to our city, and we take it as a flattering tribute to the growing importance of Portland There are few Oregonians who will not read this paper with interest We cannot dwell at any length on the table of contents Thoughtful readers, we take it for granted, will inspect for themselves

The nomination of Seymour took place on the 9th July Why couldn't the Convention with a regard for the fitness of things have postponed it to 13th, the anniversary of the draft riots which he incited? Such a coincidence would have been regarded as a favorable omen and caused the nomination to be received with immense applause by the "Democracy"

No doubt there was great rejoicing in New York City over the nomination of Seymour We expect to hear that his friends rushed right off in an ecstacy of joy and hung the first "nigger" they met, to a lamp post

The Amador Ledger says "Because General Grant didn't run worth a cent during the few years of the late Democratic canvass in the South the Democracy say he will not run well during this canvass"

POLITICAL ITEMS.

James Buchanan has gone to his grave with this one well earned distinction, that he was the first President of the United States weak and cowardly enough to have been willing to surrender the government to treason, and to keep armed traitors in his cabinet for that purpose.

During the debate on Schofield's confirmation Senator Wilson declared that General Schofield is in favor of Grant and Colfax, on the Chicago platform, and believed their election would have as beneficial an effect upon the country as Grant's assumption of the chief command had upon the army during the war.

President Johnson, now an unwilling witness in his message to Congress last December, says of Gen. Grant's administration of the War Department, "Salutary reforms have been introduced by the Secretary ad interim and great reductions of expenses have been effected under his administration of the War Department to the saving of millions to the Treasury

The nomination of Schuyler Colfax has called out all the latent enthusiasm of Indiana A correspondent writes from Lafayette to the New York Times that when the news was received, "business was generally suspended, and there was everywhere shaking of hands and jubilant cheers" The fact that in every Congressional election held during the last twelve years, Mr Colfax has "run ahead of his ticket" in every township within his district, may be profitably pondered by any too sanguine democrat who still cherishes the hope that Indiana may go democratic in the fall

"Let us Have Peace"

[From the New York Times]

Gen Grant's letter, accepting the nomination for President, is a gem. It says just enough, and not a word too much. It is clear, unmistakeably explicit on every point, and as modest and unpretending as Grant is himself Its tone is thoroughly patriotic, and in full sympathy with the people upon the great principles of Republican government.

Gen. Grant characterizes the proceedings of the National Convention as having been marked by "wisdom, moderation and patriotism,"—and he is unquestionably right in believing that they express the feelings of the great mass of those who sustained their country during its recent trials." No Convention has ever met which more fully embodied the sentiments and opinions of the people than did the Convention at Chicago.

Of the resolutions adopted, and of his own sentiments on the subjects involved in the canvass, Gen Grant proceeds to say

"I indorse their resolutions, and if elected to the office of President of the United States it will be my endeavor to administer all the laws in good faith, with economy, and with the view of giving peace, quiet and protection everywhere In times like the present it is impossible, or at least eminently improper, to lay down a policy to be adhered to, right or wrong, through an administration of four years. New political issues not foreseen are constantly arising, the views of the public on old ones are constantly changing, and a purely administrative officer should always be left free to execute the will of the people I always have respected that will and always shall Peace, and universal prosperity, its sequence, with economy of administration, will lighten the burden of taxation, while it constantly reduces the national debt. LET US HAVE PEACE"

No language could more fully or more explicitly embody the dominant wish of the American people that with which the General closes this admirable letter—"LET US HAVE PEACE!" It is the wish nearest the heart of all classes—all States and all sections Peace—a settled, just and permanent Peace—not merely the end of War, but the end of the discord, resentment and hatred which survive the War—is what the American people, without distinction of section, of party, or of race, most of all, at this moment, most fervently desire They see in it the indispensable condition and the sure guarantee of "universal prosperity" which Gen. Grant justly and fitly says is "its sequence" It is the beginning of the nation's convalescence When it comes, the wounds of war will begin to heal —the losses of war can be repaired —the life of the nation, paralized and checked by war, will again start forth and renew, with augmented vigor and force, the development of the nation's strength.

And the country will recognize in the victorious General who closed the war and put the finishing blow to the rebellion out of which it grew, the man, best fitted of all, to give the nation that peace whose worth he understands so well His election will reassure the country, in all its parts that the reign of peace—under the Law and the Constitution has again begun Every branch of industry—every department of public and private activity—labor in all its forms—enterprise, adventure, energy in all the shapes and channels through which their results are achieved will experience a new and more vivid life, and will pour into the nation's lap richer and more abundant fruits

The whole country repeats the demand "Let us have Peace,"—and will regard Grant's election as the harbinger of its coming

Roll of Honor No 11 containing the names of 12 000 Union soldiers who died in the prison stockades of the South, has just been published by the Quartermaster General It is asserted that not more than half the remains of those buried at the South have yet been identified From many of the prisons no rolls have been obtained they having been destroyed or secreted by the keepers at the close of the war

The Chicago Times, the chief Democratic paper of Illinois is down both upon Pendleton and Hancock for President It says the nomination of either would be fatal to the Democracy. Pendleton is too much identified with "greenbacks," and Hancock is anything but a soldier.

Buchanan and Clay.

[From the New York Times]

A Lancaster letter to one of the Cincinnati papers contains this remarkable passage

Mr Swarr his executor, says that he has often heard Mr Buchanan express his admiration of Henry Clay This was, of course, after Mr Clay's decease Said he "Of all men I ever knew Mr Clay stood highest in magnanimity in conscious, positive superiority He was a splendid leader, largely endowed with the graces with eloquence genius, heartiness and soul

It was said by Mark Antony, according to the report which Shakespeare has left of his celebrated speech over the dead body of Cæsar, that

> The evil that men do lives after them
> The good is oft interred with their bones

The evil that the late ex President did must live after him for part of it was most disastrous to his country at large, and most destructive to the South which he made it the study of his partisan life to serve Another and scarcely the lesser part is pregnantly suggested by the above extract the wrongs of James Buchanan to Henry Clay while living, and so tardily atoned for when dead We have the charity to believe that what ever good Mr Buchanan may have done is not interred with his bones For one we are more than willing that it should be carried to his account with posterity to lessen, if possible, the great balance of evil to be made up against his memory

Most of the present generation may have overlooked the facts of history as connected with the treatment of the illustrious Kentucky statesman by the recent deceased Pennsylvania politician but there are many of Mr Clay's friends and no public man had more attached ones—still on the stage of life who have neither forgotten nor forgiven the triple wrong to which we now make brief reference

1 In the winter of 1825, when it was known that Mr Clay was the fourth in the Presidential race before the country to succeed Mr Monroe, and that he could not come before the House of Representatives to compete with Jackson Adams and Crawford, he and his Western friends were beset by the friends of Jackson and Adams, for their influence, to be thrown in the scale of their candidates respectively It was believed that Mr Crawford could not be elected, even with the States that voted for Mr Clay as their first choice. On the other hand the personal relations of Mr Clay with General Jackson and Mr Adams had at various times been interrupted With General Jackson they were, on Jackson's part, positively hostile But this did not abate the efforts of the Jackson interest to bring about a reconciliation and the vote of the West, under the lead of Clay, for Jackson Mr James Buchanan, then a member of the House of Representatives, undertook the negotiation It may be, as was subsequently intended that he volunteered this office At all events, he happened in at the room of Mr Clay, while one of his colleagues, Mr Letcher, of Kentucky was with him, and reporting to Mr Clay what was said of the pending contest outside, remarked that the opinion was current—meaning, no doubt, with the friends of Jackson, if not with the old hero himself—that with Andrew Jackson for President and Henry Clay for Secretary of State, the country would have one of the most brilliant administrations on record

After the contest was ended, and Mr Clay had deliberately and unselfishly, and with the highest sense of what he felt would be best for the country, voted in the House for Mr Adams, and most of his western friends with him, Mr Buchanan told Jackson that he could have been President if he had tendered Mr Clay the Secretaryship of State, which everybody said Mr Adams would now bestow upon him Upon this conversation Jackson subsequently founded the charge of "bargain and intrigue" against Mr Clay, and when challenged to the proof, made Mr. Buchanan his witness This ultimately brought out the celebrated Buchanan letter of 1826 (or 1827) in which the writer was impelled, from a decent respect to at least a part of the truth to say that the General had misconstrued his own mere opinion for the assertion of a fact But he had no respect, as the sequel proved, for the whole truth, and none for that manly fairness which should have prompted the relation of the part he had attempted to play in the way of "a coalition"

2 The letter of Buchanan failed to silence the charge of bribery and intrigue The writer himself was a willing participant in the result of this wicked outcry He was to be the favored recipient of the honors and offices of the triumphant Jackson party And when some years after, for the vindication of the truth of history, Mr Letcher besought Mr Clay to tell the whole story, his reply was that he was under promise to Buchanan not to repeat the conversation, from which he must first be voluntarily released by Buchanan, and he was the more determined on this point, because satisfied that most of his countrymen, even of the old Jackson party, had done him justice in their hearts, and the rest, he had every reason to believe, would do so in good time But when, just before or pending the last canvass of Mr Clay for the Presidency, a vicious but feeble effort was made to revive the old charge, Mr Letcher could not stand the injustice of longer silence, and the whole truth came out. Our recollection may be at fault as to the particular date, but it must have been about the years 1842–44

3 Mr Buchanan, if an upright man, could have had no good reason to object to this long delayed revelation. But this want of generosity toward Mr Clay soon showed itself on the stump in Pennsylvania, in the bold declaration—which respect for his recent decease forbids us to characterize in language befitting the enormity of the wrong that he knew Mr Clay and Mr Polk well, and their sentiments on the subject of protection to American industry, and of the two he believed Mr Polk to be the better and safer tariff man for Pennsylvania" How such speeches in the iron counties of Pennsylvania, (the one in question, we believe, was made at Milton, in Northumberland county,) contributed to the fraud of "Polk, Dallas and the tariff of '42," and how this fraud was gloried in, as a successful political dodge, and the tariff of '42 was soon repealed under Polk's administration and by the casting vote of Dallas, in an equally divided Senate, is well remembered in the country

Under these circumstances, we need scarcely say how little the real opinion and admiration of James Buchanan for Henry Clay, as now made known, availed the great statesman while living, and how much they might have served the cause of truth, had Mr Buchanan, if endowed with even half the "magnanimity, the heartiness and soul" which he acknowledged in a private way that he greatly admired in Mr Clay—avowed them before the world and defended his integrity and honor, as he had suffered them to be most foully maligned we need not discuss The facts carry their own commentary"

EVIL GENIUS OF DEMOCRACY —In a national point of view, it is essentially the party of cruelty, of retrogression and barbarism, and one of its administrations would set our country back fifty years It is said that the white and hollow bones of the murdered redden and bleed at the touch of the slayer. If that be so, there is not a square inch on the whole anatomy of Freedom and Union—there is not a blanching skeleton in the fearful Wilderness, or upon the field of sinister Chickamauga—that wouldn't spout red and boiling blood, like an enchanted fountain, wherever the hand of Democracy is laid. Whichever way it would move the skeleton shades of Andersonville rise up and confront it ghastly squadrons the Moloch fires of Fort Pillow rise up before it in lurid anger and the awful spectre of the murdered Lincoln stands forth, holding in its shadowy hand a veto from the righteous God

THE BEST CURE FOR RHEUMATISM is to wear good Undershirts, good Cassimere Suits and should it be warm change your heavy clothes for such as suit the weather Follow that prescription, and you will never suffer with rheumatism but be certain to buy your clothes of KOHN & FISHEL for theirs are known to cure either cold or heat and to suit both rich and poor

The Late Lamented Rufus Choate Says of Washington, that "of all his deeds the noblest was, that he never followed, never led, never acted with a party" This cannot be said in the case of all the distinguished public men of the present age It is very true however, that

SELF-ACTING FIRE ENGINE!

TILL NOW FIRES HAVE ONLY BEEN MET BY means too SLOW too LATE and too CUMBROUS.

The time lost in sending for Engines, &c, &c and in getting them into working order has too often proved fatal and accidents slight at first, have thus become DISASTROUS CALAMITIES

This new Engine is POWERFUL and PROMPT capable of being used at any time and in any place and of thus subduing a fire at the Moment of its Discovery even when of an alarming extent and also preventing the greater damage caused by the deluge of water now required to arrest the progress of the flames

INEXPENSIVE, so simple in its construction that the mere turning of a tap puts it into full and complete action, warranted Harmless to Life Health and Property always ready for instant service, though standing unused for years so portable that any person carries it without hindrance to active exertion entirely self acting and self propelling, so that all the bearer has to do is to direct the jet by means of a flexible tube It possesses within itself the power of a Force Pump, and contains a Chemical Liquid (perpetually renewable) every drop of which has a magical effect Less than one-half the contents of the EXTINGUISHER is sufficient to extinguish fires large and fierce as they may be in their earliest stages

In cases where no supply of water can be immediately obtained the EXTINGUISHER is invaluable to avert the greatest calamity individuals and communities are subjected to

They occupy no more space than a bucket of water or less; is indispensable for Churches Warehouses Theatres Factories Railway Stations, Private Dwellings &c

For Ships they are as necessary as LIFE BOATS

OFFICE CHIEF ENGINEER METROPOLITAN FIRE DEPT }
FIREMAN'S HALL
New York Jan 20 1867 }

MESSRS LEVEY BROS — Gentlemen Having been present on Monday, the 14th inst at an experimental demonstration given by you with the Extinguisher Portable Self Acting Fire Engine we take pleasure in expressing our approbation of its workings From its portability and power to project the gas and water to a considerable distance and extinguish flame we consider that it would be a most valuable auxiliary to safety in any public building especially when exposed to liability of fire from tar, lard, oil kerosene etc, and would recommend its introduction to dwellings hotels warehouses factories theatres, ships steamboats and public buildings convinced that in the hands of a person with an ordinary degree of presence of mind it might often be the means of extinguishing what would otherwise become a large conflagration

THE COUNCIL AND ITS STRATEGIES — Our readers have doubtless read in our report of Council Proceedings, the resolution introduced by Mr Hal k and adopted which recites that, Whereas the pamphlets published by order of the Common Council, containing the City Charter amendments thereto, and the ordinances are unlawfully and forcibly retained etc etc The resolution following squints at the policy of getting another set printed and letting the retainer retain the pamphlets unlawfully and forcibly, as long as he may please. The Council certainly manifests a noble though quiet independence of the retainer of the books aforesaid, and a most laudable determination to gently amble on to manifest destiny in spite of all obstacles and without regard to [illegible]. More; the Council proposes to adjust the little imbroglio with the late Marshal who is the unlawful and forcible retainer aforesaid in a peaceful way and in a spirit of forbearing meekness. This is well perhaps, the best strategy practicable under all the circumstances, but where is the lion spirit of the Council of the olden time? Where is that clarion voice which so used to rouse [illegible] its friends and awe into abjection its enemies? Can it be that the great fulminators of edicts and bulls have come down to be mere scribblers of "whereas" and "therefore resolved"? What a fall is here really, these be the piping times of peace

> Grim visaged war hath smoothed his wrinkled front
> And now,—instead of mounting barbed steeds
> To fright the souls of fearful adversaries—
> He capers nimbly in a lady's chamber
> To the lascivious pleasings of a lute

But strategy, my boy! strategy is what's the matter. The Council hath, aforetime, bumped upon the rocks which split those who go to law. The Council, it is evident, has no insane desire to be split again. If the contumacious Marshal will unlawfully and forcibly retain the pamphlets from the C it when the Council has need of them, why the Council to checkmate the unlawful and forcible man, has only to whereas and resolve another set into existence at the expense of the city treasury and [illegible], the dignity of the Council stands forth unruffled and untarnished, and the unlawful and forcible man stands rebuked and powerless, all through strategy and all to the glorification of the arts of peace. Blessed are the meek. Now, as the unlawful and forcible man the late Marshal, still retains the keys and the possession of the city jail, the Council should still further rebuke him and render him still further powerless by adopting a [illegible] looking to the erection of another jail building to be locked and unlocked with a bran new set of keys.

"WHO PASS DESE LOCAL [illegible]!"—The following which, some time ago appeared in the Cincinnati Times illustrates how even local editors may be sinned against:

D W Ove, Larry Hasen was met yesterday by a keeper of a beer saloon on Vine street, over the canal who was laboring under considerable apparent excitement. Recognizing Hasen he stepped up to him with the exclamation

"Who pose dese wot you calls local editors"

"They pick up items," said the officer, "dead head into shows, etc"

"Dey pick up items! I tink so. Is gold watch items Is sixty dollar items? Hey?

He was asked to explain what he meant, which he did as follows:

"Dis morning I was drinkin' lager mit mine friends, all de wile in mine saloon, und in gomes a young man—by tam he vas such a nother nice young man vot der nev er vas already—und he pulls out a little [illegible] pook und a [illegible], and he says he pees local editors and he vants me to tell him all vot there vos put the row mit mine peer shop last night!

"I asks him what kind 'o pier he vos to that row [illegible] vot kind of right?

"Und he says he reports um in de hapers'

"So I tell him all vot I don t know' pout the rows vot some tam rowdies tries to kick out of mine saloon on last [illegible] Und mine poarders gets around und they tells more tings vot I recollects, und te nice young man, he sits down on his [illegible] 'n pook mit his lead pen[illegible]. Den he trinks glass lager, which he don't let him pay for, by [illegible] (I felt sure he was never one little [illegible] fellow when he no make pay mit my lager. But dat makes notting difference. Der's no principle in dat)—and den he goes out and I don t sees him agin all de wile.

"Den one of mine poarders he finds himself stolen away from his gold watch py tam. Und my neighbor [illegible] he found sixty tollar wat he hadn t got.

"The nice young man who pretended to be a local [illegible], was a pickpocket," said Hasen, "who took that [illegible] to carry on his trade, and he [illegible] pretty well with he got a gold watch and sixty dollars."

"[illegible] pretty well, mine Got! De [illegible] a man gomes in my saloon mit his tam sheep[illegible] and lead pook, and says he is local editors he don't [illegible]!"

[illegible] SALEM.—The San Francisco Commercial Herald of June 29th, copying from the Salem Record, an [illegible] the projected bank at that city, says [illegible] bank is an essential requisite in a town, placing [illegible] the [illegible] of the inhabitants, and those of [illegible] settlements. So long as a bank sticks to its [illegible], its effect must be beneficial, but [illegible] from that rule, and uses the money of [illegible] to engage in "cornering operations," in getting control of certain stocks, in "bulling and bearing" the market, in speculating and [illegible] men with their own money, it [illegible] a monster of iniquity [illegible] to any place unhappy enough to own its presence. In this State, fortunately, we have no banks of [illegible]. Our constitution has wisely provided against the [illegible] of such [illegible]; and it is very surprising that the whole [illegible] experience of the Pacific [illegible] has failed to teach those of the Atlantic so valuable a [illegible]. But even banks of deposit and loan may [illegible] very corrupt and pernicious. The name of W S [illegible] is sufficient guaranty that, under his direction, the [illegible] bank will be restrained within its legitimate line. [illegible] The establishment of a bank in Salem [illegible] such auspices, furnishes good evidence of the [illegible] and [illegible] of that town, and proves that it has [illegible] productive surroundings."

[illegible] MT HOOD.—Mr W T Shanahan has Keith's [illegible] of Mt. Hood, on exhibition in the show window [illegible]. It is incomparably a better view [illegible] than the picture by [illegible], and the outlines of the scenery will be recognized by those who have seen Mt. Hood from the valley of [illegible] river, as remarkably truthful. The artist's stand [illegible] on the bank of the stream, some twenty miles [illegible] of the mountain's base; the view looks up [illegible] which the river flows and [illegible] the mountain fully, to a considerable distance [illegible] snow line, the time, late in the afternoon, [illegible] the sun was nearly behind the artist and shining [illegible] the western slope of the mountain. At such an [illegible] the side of the mountain looking to the west is [illegible] up with a brilliant, rich golden hue never to be [illegible] by those who have not stood as did our artist, [illegible] just before sunset. Mr Keith has [illegible] this peculiarity of mountain scenery as con[illegible] contrast with the shadows behind the [illegible] truthfulness. The picture is, in [illegible] which would reflect credit upon a much older [illegible] Mr. Keith. We are informed that photographs [illegible] will hereafter be made.

[illegible]—We received yesterday by Mr A [illegible] Reynolds a small box of gooseberries of remarkable [illegible] from the garden of Mr. Wm Shelton of Walla Walla. [illegible] were not less than thirty of them, in one cluster [illegible] of about six inches in length, and there was [illegible] these less in size than the [illegible] Royal [illegible] cherry, while many of them measure from three to four and a half inches each, in circumference. They are [illegible] in shape, with clear skins, tender, and of sweet [illegible] pleasant flavor. They have no appearance of being affected with mold, the curse of [illegible] in this valley. We doubt if any bushes can [illegible] in this region of country so productive of faultless fruit, as the branch sent us. Walla Walla must have the credit of being great on peaches and goose[illegible].

A NEW WASHING MACHINE.—Mr B F Sawyer, general agent for Oregon for Pike's patent Washing machine, [illegible] one or two of them now on exhibition in this city. [illegible] John and H L. Pike, of Astoria, are the inventors and patentees. The machine is quite different from the older patents consisting of a peculiar shaped [illegible] provided with ribs over which the clothes tumble as [illegible] or slides upon pivots. He has two kinds of machine, one oscillated by a lever and the other by a cog attachment. Trials of the machines by several [illegible] have resulted most satisfactorily. They are [illegible] worked and not very expensive. Specimen ma[illegible] may be seen at Knapp, Burrell & Co's store, Smith [illegible] foundry and at C H Myers shop. Mr Sawyer has made arrangements for their manufacture in this city.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.—The following business was [illegible] by the Board of County Commissioners, yesterday:

[illegible] of the viewers on the road from Jones' farm to [illegible] subject postponed until parties agree as to [illegible].

[illegible] of the viewers on the Boone's ferry road, order [illegible] report be confirmed, and the prayer of the [illegible] to vacate the road denied.

[illegible] of D W Williams, late County Treasurer, [illegible].

[illegible] exhibit of the County Clerk read.

[illegible] that the first Friday of each term be devoted [illegible] and allowing of claims.

[illegible] till to-day.

[illegible] TO MURDER A CHINAMAN.—A night or two [illegible] pt was made by several Chinamen on Al[illegible], to murder one of their countrymen on ac[illegible] of some disagreement concerning religious belief. [illegible] from them and running up Alder street fell [illegible] men who protected him from the pursu[illegible]. The officer had just visited the premises on [illegible] of a woman who had discovered the [illegible] of the assassinationists, but finding everything [illegible], had gone on his round. The bloody minded [illegible] attempted to get their intended victim away from the officer, but failed.

COME LEG FUND.—The total sum raised for the pur[illegible] a cork leg for Wm. Atkins, up to yesterday was [illegible], of which $74 36 was contributed by various [illegible] through the OREGONIAN office; $71 through the [illegible] office, and $60 collected by Mr Atkins, him[illegible]. Mr Atkins, yesterday deposited the amount with [illegible] Tilton and Mr H Boyd has volunteered to trans[illegible] the [illegible] of procuring the limb. Meantime Mr [illegible] has employment from Mr W S Ladd, by which [illegible] earn his living.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—DEADY, JUDGE.—The following were the proceedings, yesterday, in the U S District [illegible].

The Grand Jury presented two indictments and were [illegible].

[illegible] vs one still and one barrel of spirits, etc de[illegible], and the same ordered sold.

[illegible] vs one still and 54 barrels of spirits; decree of forfeiture, and the same ordered sold.

[illegible] till to-day.

[illegible] PRODUCE.—The following were the receipts [illegible]: Per steamer Senator 12 boxes eggs, 9 [illegible], 1 bale furs 11 hf bbls dried apples. Per [illegible] gunnies middlings 21 cases linseed oil, 10 bales [illegible], 16 gunnies bacon and 3 cases mdse. Per [illegible] bales wool and 5 boxes cherries.

INCORRECT FLOUR TELEGRAMS.—The Salem Record of yesterday has the following: In the dispatches of the Oregonian and the Herald of yesterday under the head of "New York and Liverpool flour market," the following item appears: 400 barrels Salem Oregon, reported sold at $6 60. It should have read "San Francisco flour market [illegible] 000 barrels Salem [illegible] at $6 [illegible]." The actual sale of Salem Mills flour day before yesterday in San Francisco, as noted by private dispatches to the Company here, was 1,200 barrels at the above price.

CIRCUIT COURT—UPTON JUDGE.—The following were the proceedings in the Circuit Court yesterday:

Ladd Reed & Co vs R H Snow et al; jury out all night came in this morning unable to agree; jurors discharged.

A. F Hedges vs Stirling administrator of the estate of Holbrook; jury empanneled and argument submitted. Mitchell and Henley for plaintiff Stirling, Shattuck and Logan for defendant.

TELEGRAPH MATTERS.—Mr G H Mumford managing agent of the Pacific Division of the Western Union Telegraph Co and Mr Gamble general superintendent, arrived at this city last evening, overland from San Francisco. We hear that they are on a tour of [illegible] the Upper Columbia and Idaho on business connected with the construction of new lines.

STEAMBOAT TO BE SOLD.—The U S Marshal advertises the steamboat Rainier for sale at public auction on the 25th, for penalties and costs adjudged against her owners at the present term of the U S District Court.

FOR THE BARBECUE.—The [illegible] steamer will leave at half past six o'clock this morning [illegible] through to Salem carrying passengers to the Democratic barbecue on Saturday. The fare is half the usual rates.

ASSAULTING AN OFFICER.—[illegible] who was yesterday tried before the Recorder for assaulting an officer and was sentenced [illegible] twenty five days in jail in default of a fine of $50.

THE FOURTH OF JULY HAT suitable for warm weather, will be introduced to-day, Saturday, June 20th at J C Meussdorffer & Bros. This Hat is manufactured entirely by our firm in this city. It is light, [illegible] and airy and price very reasonable. Call and examine.

THE BROADWAY STYLES OF BOYS' HATS received per last steamer and for sale by J A Daly 103 Front street.

The Hebrew Benevolent Society will hold their regular meeting Sunday July 12th, at half-past 1 o'clock P M at the Turn Verein Hall.

The undersigned who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise which commands here and in the markets of the interior a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers and every day he sees increasing the number of those who by counterfeit or imitation of his mark seek to deceive the public palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS!
A Pure and Powerful Tonic,
Corrective and Alterative, of wonderful efficacy in Diseases of the STOMACH, LIVER AND BOWELS.
PROTECTIVE PROPERTIES.
Prevents Fever and Ague and Billious Remittent Fevers; Fortifies the System against Miasma and the evil effects of unwholesome water, Invigorates the organs of digestion and the bowels,
Steadies the Nerves and tends to Prolong Life.
REMEDIAL PROPERTIES.
Cures Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Sick and Nervous Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation, Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Sea Sickness, Cramps and Spasms and all complaints of either sex arising from Bodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or
PRODUCED BY SPECIAL CAUSES
NOTHING THAT IS NOT WHOLESOME GENIAL and restorative in its nature, enters into the composition of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element, no fiery excitant; but is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants
The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated, and the appetite restored by this Tonic, and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of Indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless aprient as well as upon the liver it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs
Persons of feeble habit liable to Nervous Attacks, Lowness of Spirits and Fits of Languor find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is conclusive and from both sexes
As a Genuine Tonic HOSTETTER'S BITTERS produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In case of Constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay and Debility and Decrepitude arising from old age it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed it operates to re-enforce and re-establish them
Last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acrid elements present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day

Ad Willamettam

The following meritorious poem appeared originally in the Albany Democrat, and is understood to have been written by Samuel L. Simpson

From the Cascades' frozen gorges
Leaping like a child at play,
Winding, widening through the valley
Bright Willamette glides away
Onward ever
Lovely river
Softly calling to the sea,
Time that scars us
Maims and mars us,
Leaves no track or trench on thee

Spring's green witchery is weaving
Braid and border for thy side
Grace forever haunts thy journey
Beauty dimples on thy tide
Through the purple gates of morning
Now thy roseat ripples dance
Golden then when Day departing
On thy waters trails his lance
Waltzing, flashing,
Tinkling, plashing,
Limpid volatile and free—
Always hurried
To be buried
In the bitter moon-mad sea

In the crystal deeps inverted
Swing a picture of the sky,
Like those wavering hopes of Aidenn
Dimly in our dreams that lie,
Clouded often, drowned in turmoil,
Faint and lovely far away
Wreathing sunshine on the morrow
Breathing fragrance round to-day
Love would wander
Here and ponder—
Hither Poetry would dream
Life's old questions
Sad suggestions
Whence and whither throng thy stream

On the roaring wastes of ocean
Soon thy scattered waves shall toss
Mid the surges rythmic thunder
Shall thy silver tongues be lost
Oh thy glimmering rush of gladness
Mocks this turbid life of mine
Racing to the wild Forever
Down the sloping paths of time!
Onward ever,
Lovely river,
Softly calling to the sea,
Time that scars us,
Maims and mars us,
Leaves no track or trench on thee

ALBANY, April 1868 S. L. S.

Daniel Boone

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY OF SOME PERSONAL ESTATE TO WHICH HIS HEIRS HAVE CLAIMS

From one of the sturdiest Kentucky Federal soldiers from the Eastern part of the State, whom we met at [illegible] Cave Hill Cemetery yesterday, and [illegible] we have unfortunately forgotten, [illegible] the following remarkable facts He says that some men engaged in cutting saw-logs in the neighborhood of the turnpike leading from Richmond in Madison county over the Big Hill, and near the latter place, rolled a large log down a steep declivity, which in its descent tore up a black oak stump that disclosed a badly decayed ebony box lined with brass, in which were [illegible] several articles that gave the strongest [illegible] that the box was deposited there by [illegible], the celebrated pioneer of the "dark and bloody ground." In the box which was about 18 inches long and proportionally shaped, were found 23 English coins of the denomination of half crowns, a plain, round, silver medal marked "D. B.," and 3 gold Spanish doubloons, of the date of 1772 There were several articles of cutlery, among them a silver handled Spanish stiletto with "Boone" carved on it in awkward characters, and a cup and saucer made of delf, beautifully figured. A curiously wrought wooden spoon was sadly worm eaten There were several gun flints and some small parcels, the contents of which had entirely decayed, though the paper was in a tolerably fair state of preservation, considering the long period they had been hidden there.

Among several other letters and papers rendered wholly indecipherable by the effacing hand of time, was the following from a niece in North Carolina, which seems to have been written with better ink than the rest, and can be read in a strong light, though here and there a word has to be guessed at. The paper on which it was written was evidently torn from an account-book, and is strong and thick as was most of the paper made 90 or 100 years ago. Nancy was certainly not a very accomplished [illegible] student, but her letter, no doubt, was very highly prized by the old pioneer, coming to him as it did in the wilds of the then "far west," with news from home. It is to be [illegible] that a part of the date of the letter [illegible]:

NORTH CAROLINA, June —.

DEAR UNKLE.—I take my pen in hand too rite you a fu lines, hoping these fu lines will fine you enjoyed the [illegible] gods blessin As Mister Stokes is goin to start too the west next week, I thort I wood rite you a fu lines hoping these fu lines will fine you enjoyin the same blessin We are all well at prisent. Danel has bin sick but he has got well. Mr. Peter Jones and Sally Williams was married las week and rented sum lan from Mr. Parker and gone to keepin house. We had a heep of fun at the warming. Unkle Bob's horse broke his leg, an he had to shute him and he has bort a nuther to plow. Unkle Bob's craps looks fine and the [illegible] washed half of Mr Nowlins corn away when it rained so hard I want to start to skool next month but mother says she don't think she can do without me I'm feared if I don't go I never will no nothin but how to spin and [illegible] and milk the cows.

NANCY

Our informant says a gentleman traveling through that part of the country where these relics were found, advised the lucky finder to write to an antiquarian society and ask them to purchase them, as he didn't feel able to pay what they were really worth, though he could no doubt have made a huge speculation upon the unsophisticated finder, who would, no doubt, have been satisfied with even the worth of the crowns and doubloons. The countryman couldn't write, however, and the gentleman did so for him, the result of which our informant says he will convey to us, and we will then convey it to our readers — Louisville Journal, May 18th.

The [illegible] Mail thinks the Southern press [illegible] from all attacks upon the personal [illegible] and military operations of Grant, "on the ground that such attacks from that quarter will be [illegible] ring arguments in the hands of his supporters." It might well have extended its advice to the North[illegible] press for precisely the same reason. [illegible] of that sort, North or South, will have an effect quite the contrary from that which is intended, and draw votes away from the[illegible].

June is the pearl of our New [illegible] year,
Still [illegible], though expected long,
Her coming startles. Long she lies in wait
Makes many a feint, peeps forth draws coyly back
Then from some southern ambush in the sky,
With one great gush of [illegible] storms the world

DR HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS

Although the fame of this renowned invigorant rests mainly on its astonishing cures of Dyspepsia Liver Complaint and intestinal disorders it is equally efficacious in nervous complaints Thousands of ladies resort to it as a remedy for hysteria, fluttering of the heart nervous headache, vertigo general debility and all peculiar disturbances and derangements to which as a sex they are subject. It cheers and lightens the depressed mental powers as well as strengthens the body, and its use is never followed by any unpleasant reaction Sold by all Druggists and dealers everywhere

CAUTION.

To all whom it may concern I hereby give notice that the so-called "Shipley's Pacific Turbine Water Wheel" is a direct infringement and copy of the famous Leffel's American Double Turbine Water Wheel and its manufacture and use is hereby prohibited Any person or persons making, using, constructing or vending said Water Wheels make themselves liable to heavy damages and penalties Parties interested will take notice, for I shall prosecute said infringements to the utmost extent of the law

That all may know I mean what I say and am not playing "Bluff" I give the following extract from a legal opinion on this subject from one of the most eminent Patent Attorneys in the United States

WASHINGTON, D C , April 17 1868

"MR A. MYERS—In accordance with your request we have examined the patents of Shipley on Water Wheels and are clearly of the opinion that they both infringe the Leffel's patents In both of Shipley's Wheels he uses the upper and lower tiers of buckets precisely as Leffel does and in this he clearly infringes The fact that Shipley has applied another series of buckets in addition to those used by Leffel, does not relieve him from the consequences of infringement at all He has no right to use those two tiers of buckets whether alone or with a third or any other number of tiers added It is a clear infringement. Respectfully yours,
DODGE & MUNN

I hereby give notice that I will prosecute every infringement on our Patents, whether it is the maker user buyer or seller Every infringement whether our claims are used in whole or in part, will be prosecuted

CAUTION.

To all whom it may concern One A Myers is publishing and circulating a statement that my wheel is an infringement on the Leffel wheel and he will "prosecute said infringement to the utmost extent of the law" His statements are not worth a denial He game is "Bluff" which if he would only take the case to Court would soon be played out. DR. J. C. YOUNG,
Medical and Surgical
INSTITUTE.

- CONSULTATION, IN ALL CASES, FREE
- CURES GUARANTEED, OR NO PAY REQUIRED
- IN ALL CASES WHERE CONFIDENCE IS REQUIRED THE UTMOST SECRESY MAINTAINED.

The above rules, established by Dr. J. C. Young in 1850, and which have done so much to secure the reputation of this Institute, are still adhered to, affording those in need of medical aid, the certainty of cure and the utmost confidence.

There is nothing of so great importance to the sick as to know where to find a physician whose skill and honesty give assurance of proper and delicate treatment. The Doctor would respectfully call the attention of those of both sexes who are suffering or in trouble to the invariable success which has marked the career of the Institute in the seventeen years of its existence.

It is unnecessary in this connection to enumerate all the complaints treated at the Institute, but the Doctor feels it his duty to call especial attention to that terrible scourge,

SEMINAL WEAKNESS,

That is sapping with its insidiousness the very life of its victims; in the treatment and cure of which the Institute has earned so enviable a reputation.
